

Example by StudyDriver

Source: <https://studydriver.com/president-donald-trump/>

President Donald Trump Example

He went from businessman to modern-day Hitler. Trump has many corruptions, fraud, obstruction of justice, and broken campaign promises. Trump, for example, has a conflict of interest in his business models and institutions are facing scrutiny from members of Congress because of his Pro Russian and Ties to countries with authoritarian policies. He doesn't have a traditional presidency cause of his failure to follow protocol, and his handling of administrative power. He doesn't want to release his tax return history. Trump abuses his power of the executive branch. Trump has always been the leader of something in the public eye before becoming President. He was the leader of his family's real estate company in 1971. He co-authored several books, including The Art of the Deal.

He owned the Miss Universe and Miss USA beauty pageants from 1996 to 2015, and he produced and hosted the reality television show, The Apprentice, from 2003 to 2015. Forbes estimates his net worth to be $3.1 billion. Trump has always been a rich man working his way up in the world. He won the election because many people didn't vote and the few that did were males who believed that men should rule and racist believing he would make America great again. The false rumors on social media helped out with the election because ;instead, of doing research people based their opinions off things they read on Facebook. Trump has made many broken promises, to create an affordable healthcare, and he claimed to make America better. Trump has caused nothing but trouble since winning the election. He should not be in office again; otherwise, America will have a lot to fear. Trump came into office and took over and made republicans who were in office leave.

Candidate Trump had two strategies to reduce the debt. He promised to grow the economy 6 percent annually to increase tax revenues. Once in office, he lowered his growth estimate to 3.5 percent to 4 percent. If you look at Trump's history, you learn many things about him. He seems to have always been good with words and convicting people to do things. Trump is not a perfect man no one is but, he is a great liar. CNN says You could write an encyclopedia about the ways in which Barack Obama is different from his successor, Donald Trump. On Saturday, Michelle Obama provided a more concise explanation for what distinguishes the two presidents from one another: Obama put country first; Trump puts himself first. Telling us how wrong Trump is for us.